RF Industries is Open for Business as an Essential Part of Our Connected Infrastructure

Many states have instituted orders in the last several days directing all non-essential businesses to discontinue operations and prohibit all in-person functions. Only businesses considered essential are permitted to remain open during these orders.

The products and services that we manufacture and supply fall under the critical services of Communications Infrastructure as defined by the United States Department of Homeland Security. We are part of a critical supply chain and recognize that connectivity is crucial in this time of increased demand and mobility. We will remain open and operational during this time as long as it is safe for our team and we are allowed to do so.

Our sales team is available to support the needs of our customers. Our production teams at all locations, who are the real stars of the show, will continue to build the quality products that you have come to trust.

Here at RF Industries, the health and safety of our employees and their families is our top priority. We are closely following the updates of the global situations and complying with all federal, state, and local guidelines for social distancing, increased cleaning/ sanitization, restricting visitors until further notice, restricting all travel and allowing much of our team to work from home. We assure you that our leadership team is committed to keeping everyone safe and healthy during this time.

The entire team at RF Industries appreciates your support and partnership. We will get through this together and as always, let us know if there's anything we can do to help you or your team.
